HISTORY

Built in 1890, the East Liberty Schoolhouse building is an excellent example of Romanesque Revival district schoolhouse architecture and one of two known extant Romanesque Revival district schoolhouses in the State of Ohio.

The building was used as a schoolhouse from 1890-1927 and then sporadically for community events until it was sold in 1937 during the Great Depression and used for Auto Salvage. Nicholas Square Furniture Store opened in 1956 in the space and operated until 2002.

The building was moved by the City of Green in December 2015, approximately 500' to the north of its original site, to rescue it from demolition where it sat vacant until 2019 when it was sold at auction.

Our journey began in 2023 when Ben Myers and his long-time friends Steve and Madelyn Whitt were approached by now-business partner, Kyle Oberlin, about the old East Liberty School building being available next to his real estate office. After seeing how unique and beautiful the building was, it was an easy decision to move forward with the idea of opening a “big city” dining experience (well-executed knife and fork recipes in addition to hand-crafted cocktails), locally to Green.

After almost 2 years of planning and build-out, we are thrilled to finally be open to the public.
